Cultural Capital in RSHE

Cultural capital is defined as the accumulation of knowledge, behaviours (moods), and skills that a student can draw upon and which demonstrates their cultural awareness, knowledge and competence; it is one of the key ingredients a student will draw upon to be successful in society, their career and the world of work.

At Baginton Fields school we enhance students' experiences and learning by utilising different opportunities in our RSHE curriculum and around the school and within our wider community.

RSHE provides a range of engaging real-world opportunities to all learners. This may be in the form of sessions by the school nurses (to explain matters of health and sex education) or local community visits to promote experiences that can shape us – from making good relationships with others to healthy living – for example, visiting pharmacies or supermarkets' health sections.

Our opportunities are founded on our individuality but also our relationships.

Students engage with peers and adults who share their wealth of experiences, providing a melting pot of diverse relationships. Students are able to develop their social skills and general relational interaction as they celebrate diversity, equality and inclusion by way of experience and adult modelling.

Within this, we also demonstrate and encourage our school values, ethos and responsibilities through assemblies and class, whole-school or community projects.
